The Ears- ENT specialists are trained in both the medical and surgical treatment of hearing, ear infections, balance disorders, ear noise (tinnitus), nerve pain, and facial and cranial nerve disorders. Otolaryngologists also manage congenital (birth) disorders of the outer and inner ear.

The Nose - Care of the nasal cavity and sinuses is one of the primary skills of otolaryngologists. Difficulty breathing through the nose due to chronic sinusitis or a deviated septum, as well as the appearance of the nose are very important issues dealt with by the ENT.

The Throat - Tonsillitis and recurrent strep throats are very common in children, but adults get them too. Also specific to otolaryngologists is expertise in managing diseases of the larynx (voice box) and the upper digestive tract or esophagus, including voice and swallowing disorders.

The Head and Neck- In the head and neck area, otolaryngologists are trained to treat infectious diseases, both benign and malignant (cancerous) tumors, facial trauma, and deformities of the face. They routinely perform both cosmetic and reconstructive surgery.

Orthopedics and Sports Medicine

Our orthopedics and sports medicine specialists treat a wide variety of diseases and conditions, including such common injuries as fractures, torn ligaments, dislocations, sprains, tendon injuries, and pulled muscles.

They also treat spine problems such as back pain, ruptured discs, sciatica, and scoliosis. More recently, great advances have occurred in the surgical management of degenerative joint disease with the replacement of the diseased joint by a prosthetic device (total joint replacement). Podiatry strives to improve the overall health and well-being of patients by focusing on preventing, diagnosing, and treating conditions associated with the foot and ankle. To treat these problems, podiatrists prescribe drugs, order physical therapy, set fractures, and perform surgery. They also fit corrective inserts called orthotics, design plaster casts and strappings to correct deformities, and design custom-made shoes.

Hyperhidrosis, or excessive sweating, is an embarrassing and socially disabling problem, probably inherited, which affects about 1% of the population. A UCLA study shows strong evidence that sweaty palms syndrome tends to run in families. It is more common in people of Asian descent, specifically Vietnamese, Chinese, and Taiwanese individuals.
